

As of the beginning of July, Prof. Dr. Jan-Hendrick Olbertz became IPU Berlin's new president. In light of this, he had a conversation with Prof. Dr. Lilli Gast (available in German), who turned over the office to him.

July also marked the restart of our psychoanalytic podcast 50 Minutes. In the first episode, we got to talk with Prof. Dr. Gunther Meinlschmidt from the IPU about psychological health (available in German). You can listen to a lecture by Prof. Dr. Joachim Küchenhoff. He gave this lecture, titled "The State of Emergency and the Individual—Insights in and with the Pandemic," as part of the series Krise lehrt Denken.

In conjunction with the Hans Kilian and Lotte Köhler Center at the Ruhr University in Bochum, the IPU Berlin is currently offering a Postdoc Fellowship for social and cultural Psychology and Psychoanalysis. Those interested may apply until 15 August 2021.

Prospective students are still able to apply for the winter semester 2021/2022 at the IPU. Starting in the winter are our Master's programs in Cultural Studies, Psychology, Leadership and Counseling as well as our Bachelor's program in Psychology. Starting in October, we are currently planning on in-person classes, except for lectures that include more than 60 people, which presumably will still take place online. Current information on this and other elements of IPU life can be found on our website and through Facebook and Instagram.

News from IPU's International Office

Curious about spending a semester abroad during the summer term of 2022? For more information on available partner universities, funding, application procedure, etc., please have a look on our website. The application deadline is 31 July 2021.

Students from more than 15 different countries participated in this year's IPU Summer School, which took place online between the 4th and 16th of July. Through lectures, seminars, discussion groups, reflection sessions, and much more, participants and lecturers took part in interesting conversations revolving around the topic Ruptures and Utopia – Psychoanalytic Perspectives and Social Critique. The International Office sends its gratitude to all involved parties for making the summer school a great experience.
